Economics of Innovation and New Technology

Editor: Cristiano Antonelli, University of Turin, Italy

Volume 20, 8 issues per year
Print ISSN: 1043-8599, Online ISSN: 1476-8364

Devoted to theoretical and empirical analysis of innovation and new technology, this peer-reviewed journal acts as a bridge between the contributions of economic theory and empirical economics in this field. This bridge is built in two ways. First, by encouraging empirical research (including case studies, econometric work and historical research), evaluating existing economic theory, and suggesting appropriate directions for future effort in theoretical work. Second, by exploring ways of making existing areas of theory testable, and ways of using theoretical insights to inform data collection and other empirical research.

Applied Mathematical Finance

Co-Editors-in-Chief: Ben Hambly, University of Oxford, UK

William Shaw, University College London, UK

Volume 18, 6 issues per year
 Print ISSN: 1350-486X, Online ISSN: 1466-4313

The journal encourages the confident use of applied mathematics and mathematical modelling in finance. The journal publishes papers on the following:

- modelling of financial and economic primitives (interest rates, asset prices etc);
- modelling market behaviour;
- modelling market imperfections;
- pricing of financial derivative securities;
- hedging strategies;
- numerical methods;
- financial engineering.

The journal encourages communication between finance practitioners, academics and applied mathematicians. Both theoretical and empirical research are welcomed, as are papers on emerging areas of mathematical finance and interdisciplinary topics. The journal seeks papers reviewing the development of significant practical tools, algorithms and new products. The modelling or solution of problems should demonstrate the capacity for generalization. Original and substantial pieces of research resulting in open problems are welcome; this will also be a forum for the airing of new problems and new areas of activity.

The European Journal of Finance

Frequency Increase

Included in the Social Sciences Citation Index[®]

Editor: Chris Adcock, University of Sheffield, UK

Volume 17, 10 issues per year

Print ISSN: 1351-847X, Online ISSN: 1466-4364

The European Journal of Finance publishes a full range of research into theoretical and empirical topics in finance. The emphasis is on issues that reflect European interests and concerns. The journal aims to publish work that is motivated by significant issues in the theory or practice of finance.

The journal promotes communication between finance academics and practitioners by providing a vehicle for the publication of research into European issues, stimulating research in finance within Europe, encouraging the international exchange of ideas, theories and the practical application of methodologies and playing a positive role in the development of the infrastructure for finance research, teaching and practice throughout Europe.

The Journal of Behavioral Finance

JOURNAL OF THE INSTITUTE OF BEHAVIORAL FINANCE

Included in the Social Sciences Citation Index[®]

Editor: Brian Bruce, PanAgora Asset Management, USA

Volume 12, 4 issues per year

Print ISSN: 1542-7560, Online ISSN: 1542-7579

In The Journal of Behavioral Finance, leaders in many fields are brought together to address the implications of current work on individual and group emotion, cognition, and action for the behavior of markets. They include specialists in personality, social, and clinical psychology; psychiatry; organizational behavior; accounting; marketing; sociology; anthropology; behavioral economics; finance; and the multidisciplinary study of judgment and decision making. The journal will foster debate among groups who have keen insights into the behavioral patterns of markets but have not historically published in the more traditional financial and economic journals. Further, it will stimulate new interdisciplinary research and theory that will build a body of knowledge about the psychological influences on market fluctuations. The most obvious benefit will be a new understanding of markets that can greatly improve investment decision making. Another benefit will be the opportunity for behavioral scientists to expand the scope of their studies via the use of the enormous databases that document behavior in markets.

Journal of Property Research

Editor: Bryan D. MacGregor, University of Aberdeen, UK

Volume 28, 4 issues per year
 Print ISSN: 0959-9916, Online ISSN: 1466-4453

The Journal of Property Research is an international journal. The title reflects the expansion of research, particularly applied research, into property investment and development.

The Journal of Property Research publishes papers in any area of real estate investment and development. These may be theoretical, empirical, case studies or critical literature surveys. There are two major areas of focus:

1. Property investment and finance. This covers topics such as the characteristics of property as an investment class, forecasting of markets and property portfolio construction. Much of this research will be an application to property of techniques developed in other investment markets.
2. Land development. This covers a wide range of issues surrounding the development and redevelopment of property. The focus may be financial, economic or environmental; urban or rural; public or private sector.

The Journal provides a forum for research in the field and assists researchers and practitioners to keep abreast of new developments.

Journal of Social Entrepreneurship

Editor: Alex Nicholls, Oxford University, UK

Volume 2, 2 issues per year
 Print ISSN: 1942-0676, Online ISSN: 1942-0684

This exciting new journal focuses on social entrepreneurship and social innovation across a range of sectors and cultural settings. The vision for the Journal is as a high quality, multi-disciplinary publication that embraces and encourages work on social entrepreneurship from a range of scholarly perspectives beyond – but including – business and management and which accepts that social entrepreneurship has much to offer in its own right to business, and the third and public sectors. Primary amongst these disciplines will be: social policy and political science; anthropology; sociology; not-for-profit management; finance; organizational theory; strategy; social geography; (development) economics; ethics and moral philosophy; and social psychology. However, the Journal will be open to work in any scholarly tradition with the caveat that the work is squarely focused on social entrepreneurship.

Print ISSN: 1463-1377, Online ISSN: 1465-3958

Post-Communist Economies publishes key research and policy articles in the analysis of post-communist economies. The basic transformation in the past two decades through stabilisation, liberalisation and privatisation has been completed in virtually all of the former communist countries, but despite the dramatic changes that have taken place, the post-communist economies still form a clearly identifiable group, distinguished by the impact of the years of communist rule. Post-communist economies still present distinctive problems that make them a particular focus of research.

Rethinking Marxism

A Journal of Economics, Culture & Society

Editor: S Charusheela

Associate Editors: Joseph Childers, Yahya M. Madra and Maliha Safri

Volume 23, 4 Issues per year
Print ISSN: 0893-5696, Online ISSN: 1475-8059

The aim of Rethinking Marxism is to stimulate interest in and debate over the explanatory power and social consequences of Marxian economic, cultural, and social analysis. To that end, we publish studies that seek to discuss, elaborate, and/or extend Marxian theory. Our concerns include theoretical and philosophical (methodological and epistemological) matters as well as more concrete empirical analyses – all work that leads to the further development of distinctively Marxian discourses. We encourage contributions from people in many disciplines and from a wide range of perspectives. We are also interested in expanding the diversity of styles for producing and presenting Marxian discourses.

Bulletin of Indonesian Economic Studies

Included in the Social Sciences Citation Index® and Journal Citation Reports®

Editor: Ross H. McLeod, Australian National University, Australia

Volume 47, 3 issues per year
Print ISSN: 0007-4918, Online ISSN: 1472-7234

The Bulletin of Indonesian Economic Studies, a peer-reviewed journal published by the Indonesia Project at The Australian National University's College of Asia and the Pacific, fills a significant void by providing a well respected outlet for high-quality research on any and all matters pertaining to the Indonesian economy, and touching on closely related fields such as law, the environment, government and politics, demography, education and health. In doing so, it has played an important role in helping the world, and Indonesians themselves, to understand Indonesia.

Globalizations

Frequency Increase

Included in the Social Sciences Citation Index®

Editor: Barry Gills, Newcastle University, UK

Volume 8, 5 issues per year
Print ISSN: 1474-7731, Online ISSN: 1474-774X

Globalizations publishes work which explores new meanings of globalization, brings fresh ideas to the concept, broadens its scope and contributes to shaping debates of the future. The journal is dedicated to opening the widest possible space for discussion of alternatives to a narrow economic understanding of globalization. The move from the singular to the plural is deliberate and implies scepticism of the idea that there can ever be a single theory or interpretation of the term. Rather, the journal encourages the exploration and discussion of multiple interpretations and multiple processes that may constitute many possible globalizations, many possible alternatives.
