A Shared Vision for Your Research

As an international, peer-reviewed journal, Australian Feminist Studies is proud to sustain a clear political commitment to feminist teaching, research and scholarship. The journal publishes articles of the highest calibre from all around the world, that contribute to current developments and issues across a spectrum of feminisms.

Australian Feminist Studies promotes cutting-edge feminist scholarship both within and beyond conventional academic disciplines. This includes discussion of feminist pedagogy; reports on local, national and international conferences; analyses of government, trade union, and United Nations policies that concern women; discussion in cultural, post-colonial and trans-national studies that involve feminist analyses.

Australian Feminist Studies proudly proclaims commitment to feminist work. The editorial practice has always included its recognition of difference and diversity among feminisms, and hence within feminist scholarship.

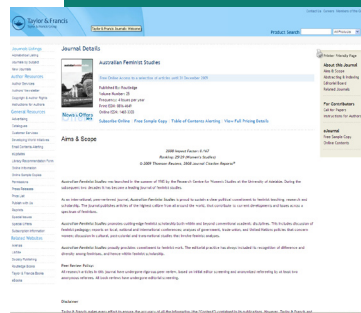

Submit Your Research

Australian Feminist Studies is proud to sustain a clear political commitment to feminist teaching, research and scholarship. We are a fully-refereed international journal. We publish work of the highest calibre that shares our concerns with issues in any of a spectrum of feminisms.

We invite contributions and require electronic submission using .doc, .rtf or similar format (but not .pdf). Electronic contributions should be addressed to Cathy Hawkins, Assistant Editor: afs@hmn.mq.edu.au
